

A Personal Chat With Women About Choosing a Corset

Gossard
CORSETS
They Lace In Front

The most important advice we could give you is to select your Corset with care. Select one that fits you—the model that you ought to have for your particular figure. Too many women make the mistake of buying a Corset of a certain style, whether or no that particular style is adapted to their needs.

The Corset designer of to-day aims at two distinct things in modeling Corset shapes. One is to secure for the wearer the correct fashion outline, and the other to see that the wearer obtains the greatest amount of comfort without in any way sacrificing the fashion lines.

Our corsetiere studies each particular kind of Corset, so that she can advise you at once upon the type of Corset best fitted to your requirements. You will find it a great advantage in making selection to allow her to help you choose the model that will help mold the lines of the figure so that the harmony of outline is obtained without in any way sacrificing comfort, which every woman should demand.

There is no extra cost attached to this service we ask to render you. Our Fall Gossards are now ready, priced from $2.00 to $8.50, Warner's Rust-Proof, $1.00 up. Also Flexo Form, La Grecque, etc.

Russell's, The Red Cross Pharmacy

Where the Lady Scored.

Lady Randolph Churchill, on one occasion, asked Bernard Shaw, the author, to lunch with her. To her invitation she received this ungracious telegram from the author:

"Certainly not. What have I done to provoke such an attack on my well known habit?"

To which Lady Randolph replied:

"Know nothing of your habits. Hope they are not as bad as your manners."

What He Really Wanted.

A small boy went inside a store that displayed a sign, "Boy Wanted."

"What kind of a boy does yer want?" he asked of the merchant.

"Why, a decent boy," said the merchant. "One who is quick, doesn't swear, smoke cigarettes, whistle round the office, play tricks."

"Oh, say, boss," interrupted the boy. "Yer don't want no boy; yer want a girl."

Might Do That for Him.

A very competent suitor was on his knees to the girl. She had refused him, but still he remained.

"Really, I cannot," she added. "And lest someone may come in won't you rise?"

"That's just it," replied the man of avoirdupois. "I can't. Won't you at least help me up?"

Politics in a Barber Shop.

Politics waxed warm in a Barre tenorial parlor yesterday as the recumbent figures in the chairs relaxed their bodies and their minds. The talk turned to the senatorial issue, and the various candidates were given the "once over" again and again. Two well-known Barre men were the most outspoken in their declarations that they wouldn't vote for Allen M. Fletcher, anyway.

"I wouldn't vote for a hoodler," emphatically asserted one of the men. "Nor I, either," chorused the other.

About that time one of the recumbent figures, that of a man who had not joined in the discussion, sat up in his chair and made leisurely preparations for going out. He handed the barber the price of the work and with a quizzical smile on his face remarked: "Do I look like a hoodler?"

It was Allen M. Fletcher.

SPECTACULAR DROP.

Autoplane Damaged But Occupants Little Hurt.

Marblehead, Mass., Sept. 12.—What appeared at the time to be an aeroplane disaster of the first magnitude occurred over Salem harbor just opposite the Willows lake yesterday afternoon, when James McGrath, instructor, and his pupil, George R. Fearing of Boston, apparently plunged headlong from a height of 2,000 feet.

Stories that an aeroplane had "exploded" in the air over Salem bay and that two men had been killed spread like wildfire and caused much excitement in this town and in Salem. In response to a call the Salem police ambulance was dispatched to Winter island to bring back the "bodies."

Neither pilot nor passenger, however, were hurt, and the aeroplane was only slightly damaged.

McGrath, who is the aviator of Godfrey L. and Norman Cabot, had been taking Mr. Fearing on an instruction flight and had turned the machine down after reaching a height of 2,000 feet at the same time cutting off the power. Fearing took over the controls and began a steep spiral glide which appeared to observers to be almost a straight drop.

At an altitude of 100 feet the craft was straightened out, but owing to a confusion in signals between pilot and pupil the power was not turned on quickly enough and the machine stalled and sank to the surface with one wing slightly lower than the other. As a result the craft struck heavily and the wing float and central position were crushed.

Neither of the occupants, however, was thrown out and both were soon picked up by boats from the Eastern Yacht club. The machine, which is the property of Mr. Fearing and Norman Cabot, was towed back to the Burgess company plant here for repairs.

The aeroplane, built by the Burgess company, is of the Dunne self-balancing type, and both Mr. Fearing and Mr. McGrath say that this is an averted what would probably have been a fatal disaster.

Won't Work.

"I intend to give my wife $50 for Christmas."

"Go ahead. He gives twice who gives quickly."

"Oh, you can't fool her that way; she won't think it's a hundred."—Judge.

BAGPIPES AND BRICKS.

One Case in Which Music Did Not Do the Soothing Act.

The Adelphi buildings in the Strand, London, were built by two brothers of the family name of Adam, and from this fraternal union came the name that was given to the buildings, the Greek appellation of "Adelphi" or "the brothers."

These brothers were Scots and in the erection of the buildings desired to employ their own countrymen. So they sent to the "Land of Cakes and Brither Scots" for laborers to do the work.

The story goes that after they arrived and were set at work they proved less active and energetic than was profitable to the employers, to whom a bright idea finally came. They acted upon this idea and brought to London from the north country a number of bagpipers to encourage the toilers.

At first all went well. When the bricklayers heard "O Hone a Rie" and the "MacGregors' Gathering" they worked rapidly. Unluckily one day one of pipers under the influence of London gin "gave the snap away" by admitting that he and his fellow bagpipers had been bribed to play in quicker time.

Following this exposure of foul play the men from the north put down their tools and found employment elsewhere.—Indianapolis News.
